A month to month lease agreement, or tenancy at will, is a residential contract between a landlord and tenant that remains valid until canceled by either party in accordance with the agreement or the State requirement, whichever is longer. All other aspects of the landlord-tenancy relationship remain the same which is why the month-to-month arrangement is typically a simple clause added to a standard agreement.

Fixed Term Lease or Month to Month Rental Agreement

A month-to-month rental agreement might appear to be a very short version of a fixed-term lease, lasting just one month. But there's a key difference: month-to-month agreements automatically renew if neither you nor your landlord give notice of vacating within a specified time period. For example, if you plan to move out at the end of October, you may need to notify the landlord before the end of September.

Unlike a traditional 12 month agreement, the tenant will be allowed to continue to rent the property, month to month, as long as the monthly rental payments are on time and continued care to the property is taken as long as the tenant is renting. If either the landlord or tenant would wish to end the agreement, they may do so by providing written notice to vacate the property, 30 days in advance. This will keep either party in compliance with this aspect of the agreement.
